

ALLIES RENEW ADVANCE AT VERDUN PUSHING BACK THE GERMAN RIGHT WING

TODAY'S REPORTS FROM ALL RESOURCES SHOW SOME AGREEMENT ON STATUS
OF HEROIC STRUGGLE.

UNCONFIRMED REPORT

Story That Kaiser's Army at Eastern End of Line is in Flight is Not Credited by Commentators.

The turning movement directed against the German right wing by the allied armies is developing rapidly according to an announcement of the French war office this afternoon. It is declared that a serious assault on Trancy-Le-Mont was repulsed with heavy losses to the Germans.

Trancy-Le-Mont is the elbow of the fighting line that in a general way stretches from that point east and north. The official statement says that this action moved more and more toward the north.

There is nothing in the Paris announcement or in the official statements today to confirm last night's assertion by a Paris correspondent of the London News agency that the German right wing had been broken.

The French war office claims also that slight progress had been made between the Argonne region and the Meuse and that the Allies have advanced east of St. Michel.
No notable movement has occurred in the center and the situation on the right is reported unchanged.

A dispatch from Petrograd says that a fierce engagement between the armies of General Ren-nencampf and General Von Hindenburg has continued since Sunday morning along a line extending from Grosno to Draskonki on the Niemen river. Four Russian corps are pitted against an equal number of Germans. Russia reinforcements are reported as strengthening their line.

The Russians have established a civil government at Lemberg capital in the province of Galicia.
An English correspondent in Belgium says that 150,000 troops are engaged in a desperate battle along the line from Germond to Aerschot.

A report from Bucharest says that King Charles has summoned the cabinet to meet tomorrow to determine the attitude of Roumania. Earlier Bucharest reports in Paris claimed that the King wished to support Germany, but that his ministers rejected the proposal.

A message from Antwerp says that the German bombardment of the forts of Antwerp continues and that the Belgians marching on Brussels are said to be in contact with the Germans.

A correspondent at Cetinje reports that the Montenegrins have slewed the Austrian entrenchments 28 miles southeast of Sarajevo.
Tokio announces that Japanese has occupied Lau Che harbor near Tsing Tau.

With the reserve called out
Italy will have an army of 1,310, 000 men.

London, Sept. 30.—The brief official communication received from Paris declares that the conditions along the battle front in France remain unchanged. Among the special dispatches is one from Nancy which tells of the recapture by the French of St. Michel and the capture of the crown prince of Bavaria, and relates that desperate attempts are being made to retake the distinguished prisoner.

No one knows except those on the ground just how the great siege battle of the Aisne is progressing, but there are many indications that its 19th day may be witnessing a stupendous and decisive battle in the valley of the Somme.

Belgian action has been the scene of fighting, which in a war of less magnitude than the present struggle would be called a great battle, as it is estimated that more than 200,000 troops were engaged yesterday in the Antwerp triangle.

During the day desperate fighting took place along a line extending from Germond to Aerschot. The Germans are reported to be reinforced to the south of Brussels and are standing drawing their line to the Antwerp fortresses, while heavy artillery has thus far only been used.

From Brussels comes the report that the German military government is preparing to remove to Namur.
In the event General Von Hindenburg and General Rencampf, along the Nieman, are reported to have been engaged in a fierce battle during the last three days without any decisive results having been obtained.

The Times has received the following dispatch from its correspondent
in Bordeaux:

"The constant thrust of bayonet charges and the battering of heavy guns has made but little alterations along the heavily entrenched German center, but the left flank has been driven back and the German line is now only a few miles from the frontier."

"On the left front is the broadening sweep of the allies' advance, the center reaching farther to the north it is pressed out at a slightly wider angle."

"While the position in the center is virtually unaltered, the right is difficult to trace events in this portion of the frontier with any great accuracy. Between the Argonne and the Meuse the French are progressing slowly."

London, Sept. 30.—For the first time in this war of nine nations there is some concordance in the drift of the reports from the headquarters of the three armies holding the center of the front. France which is still the theatre where the most important operation is in progress. It is, however, to be noticed that corroboration by one side of claims of the other is lacking.

"The French advances from Verdun and Toul have been renewed," is the German report of yesterday's fighting on the eastern end of the line, and the communication of General Joffre, commander in chief of the French forces, agrees with it in the statement that his troops "have made slight progress in that field."

"The end of the 250 miles line the Allies 'are holding their own,' is the report from the British headquarters and the Berlin announcement seemed indirectly to admit this claim by announcing that the battle on this end has been indecisive."

In the center the French commander in chief claims slight progress. According to another version from German headquarters the French at Verdun and Toul have been repulsed.

German Right Broken.
Confirmation of a news agency story that the German right wing had been broken while the pressure of the German offensive was still crackling. Commentators show much criticism of this report, although they consider the breaking of the German right wing would be only a natural result of the present status of the picture in the French official announcement of yesterday. This shows that the Allies have pushed back the invaders in this region until the German right wing is actually at right angles with the rest of the line.

The fact that the German army headquarters admits that their great efforts to throw back the pressure of the Allies has proved indecisive, is regarded in England as significant.

An official German announcement coming by way of London states that there has been general fighting on the German right but not of a decisive character. The German headquarters also report the center of the battle line is quiet. The French advances in the vicinity of Verdun and Toul have been renewed, it is said.

A German official statement issued last night also described the fighting on their right wing as indecisive. The Allies operating against the forts on the Meuse were repulsed, it was said.
Berlin confirmed the assault on Antwerp and said that attacks by the Belgian garrison had been repulsed. Russian assaults on the government of Suwalki, Russian Poland, have failed, it is declared.

Turning Movement.
Paris, Sept. 30, 2:57 p. m.—According to the official bulletin on the war given out in Paris this afternoon the turning movement of the allies north of the Somme is developing rapidly. A German attack on Trancy-Le-Mont has been repulsed with heavy losses.

Tuesday's Fighting.
Paris, Sept. 30.—It was again the turn of the allies' left yesterday to sustain the shock of the enemy on the battle front in northern France and though the official communication does not say so it is reliably stated that again they took many prisoners.

The apparent lack of consistency in the operation of the German army added to the increased vigilance of the censor is making the work of the military press a high one. All they can deduce today from the information given out is that the Germans failed to break through the allies' front anywhere.

News Uncertain.
Naturally the absence of news makes a place for rumors which are very plentiful but which no one dares to publish even if their truth had been ascertained.

Commentators are required also to be very circumspect as is shown by the blank white gaps of various lengths in the censored articles in the Paris newspapers. All that can be said of the unofficial reports that are printable is that they are not unfavorable to the allies.

Zouaves to Front.
The Zouaves are reported by returning wounded soldiers to be covering themselves with glory in the allies' left. It is related that one day recently the French were obliged to receive under a tremendous pressure of numbers and left eight three-inch guns in the hands of the enemy. This enraged the Zouaves.

When trumpets sounded for the charge and the Zouaves bounded forward many turned their heads as they did not wish to see what they thought was sure to happen to them, but on they went shouting and defying the range of machine gun fire. A great portion fell on the way, but the rest pressed forward until they pounced on the enemy's guns. There were only a few slashes of cold steel, for the enemy broke and the cannon were immediately trained on the fleeing foe to avenge the Zouaves who had fallen in the heroic charge.

Official Statement.
The text of the statement is as follows:

"First—On our left wing north of the Somme the action continued to develop more and more to the north between the Oise and Aisne. The enemy has delivered a vigorous attack on Trancy-Le-Mont north east of the forces of Aigue. They were repulsed with heavy losses."

"Second—On the center there is relative calm along the entire front between the Argonne and the Meuse where we have made slight progress."

ITALIAN RESERVES WILL RECEIVE CALL

of Reserves Will be Called to Colors Soon.

London, Sept. 30.—The report that the 1885, 1890 and 1898 classes of Italian reserves will be called to the colors early in October has been confirmed by several Italian newspapers, according to the correspondent of the London Daily Mail at Venice. Eleven first category classes will then be announced and will total 1,300,000.

The correspondent says that Austrian troops are still throwing up defense works along the frontier, the Ponta Folle line being defended by the landwehr.

FIND CHINESE WOMAN GUILTY OF SLAVERY

Case in San Francisco Shows Chinese Girl Smuggled into Country and Sold for Slavery.

San Francisco, Sept. 30.—The first conviction on record in this part of the union for keeping a human being in slavery was obtained today when Mrs. Wong Sam, an aged Chinese woman, was found guilty of holding in bondage Loy Gum, a slave girl.

The evidence shows that the girl was smuggled into this country and sold for $3,000. After she had worked out this charge she was held under threat that she would be burned alive.

commanders, attended the establishment

Galicia and the assumption of the office of governor general by Count

ROUMANIAN CABINET BALKS AT PROPOSAL TO AID AUSTRIANS

Hohenzollern Monarch Seeks to Force Nation to Aid Relative in Present Crisis.

Paris, Sept. 30.—According to a Bucharest dispatch published in the Journal Dabats, Germany counted on the aid of Roumania, but when King Charles asked the cabinet to order a mobilization of the army one of the ministers replied:

"We are quite willing if it is against Austria."

King Charles turned to him and said "I gave my word to Emperor William and a Hohenzollern keeps his word."

The president of the council then interposed, saying: "The country only the king of Roumania, who does not have to give his word to anyone whatsoever."

King Charles then decided to call a council of the crown with the former ministers in audience, but only one sided with him in favor of Germany. It is reported that the king asked the general Averesco to try a coup d'etat and arrest the ministers, but Averesco refused, saying: "Sir, you will be the first victim."

It is said that the three superior officers declared they would desert and join the Russian army rather than fight for Austria.

CANNING FACTORIES ARE BEING WATCHED

Industrial Commission Will Investigate Complaints of Violation of Child Labor Law.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—It was reported here today that the Industrial commission will investigate the complaints of violation of the child labor law at work on complaints against Wisconsin canneries which are said to have violated the laws relating to child labor and hours of labor for women.

The report of the Industrial commission for the two years ending June 30, 1914, shows that there were thirty-four actions for violation of child labor law, eleven actions for violation of the women's house law, and one action for violation of child labor and women's labor laws, eleven actions for violation of sanitation regulations, two actions for violating safety laws, one action for operating a factory without a license, one action for hindering and molesting a deputy.

The largest penalty collected was $2,000 while the smallest was $10 in the commencing of this phase of the Industrial Commission's work the report says:

"It has been the aim of the commission to administer the laws without unnecessary severity."

The commission has endeavored to secure compliance with the laws without legal action if reasonably possible and to resort to prosecutions only after instructions and warnings have failed. However, there has been no hesitation to prosecute when such action was thought proper and necessary."

REPUBLICANS NAME FRASER SECRETARY

ing at Milwaukee Today For Or-

GERMAN SIEGE GUNS WERE SECRETLY MADE AT LIEGE MANUFACTURED QUICKLY AND SECRETLY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berlin, Sept. 30.—A member of the German Parliament, who for nearly ten years has been connected with the Army Budget Committee of the Reichstag tells some interesting things of the history of the now famous 42-centimetre siege guns which served the Germans so effectively at Liege and Namur.

"The surprise that Germany possessed such mortars," he says, in an article published by the Neue Zuercher Zeitung, "was as great in Germany as it was in other countries."

After the completion of secret tests with these guns some time ago, and the decision of the government to order a number of them, it was a problem as to how to keep a secret.

"Over forty officers took part in the discussions at which the military budget was prepared for submission to the Budget Committee of the Reichstag. A new clause was reached only the heading 'Arms,' the chief of the department of arms requested that for the time being this subject could not be discussed. At the conclusion of the conference the title 'Arms' involved new siege mortars."

"The general staff requested urgently that not a word be said of the matter in the committee; not even the officers present had any knowledge of it."

"Six weeks ago I visited an ammunition factory as a member of the armament commission and ascertained that a number of projectiles and casts for these mortars could be produced within a very short time. In reply to my question whether these mortars did not wear out rapidly, a director of the company said: 'There are not enough fortresses in existence in the whole world to wear out a single mortar.' As a matter of fact we possess 3,000 mortars of an earlier date, which are still usable."

The official North German Gazette also discusses the new mortars. It states that the new mortars are designed to be used in a different manner than the old ones. It says:

"If a weapon of the German army has a claim to popularity it is the 42-centimetre mortars which have managed to remain concealed. In fact, the nick-name 'Brummer,' which has been given to these mortars shows how artificially this popularity has been created. It is not a mortar which can be distinguished by a shot which hurls with accuracy a weight of eight hundredweights over a space of a German mile to its goal, causes an atmospheric pressure which is sufficient to blow everything into the air. Reports have shown that the projectile, after it has left the mortar causes a great noise only by cutting through the air."

TURKEY TO COLLECT ALL CAPITULATIONS

Turks Will Carry Out Announced Intention of Granting Extra Territorial Rights.

Washington, Sept. 30.—So far as officials here know, Turkey will carry out its announced intention to extra territorial rights to foreign ly manner in which Turkey exercises the new full sovereignty over her dominion. The cruiser North Carolina will be kept off the Turkish coast for the present, and the cruiser Tennessee is under orders to proceed to Brindisi.

BANKERS IN PROTEST OVER WAR TAX BILL

Sheboygan County Bankers Pass Resolution Protesting Against Tax on Capital Surplus.

Sheboygan, Sept. 30.—At the quarterly meeting of the bankers' development club of Sheboygan county held at Plymouth last night, a resolution was adopted protesting against the war tax measure which placed a tax of $2 per $1,000 on the capital surplus and undivided profits of the banks of the country.

The protest was made on the grounds that it is class legislation.
This tax is in addition to the corporation tax which the banks are compelled to pay to the state and federal government.

Antwerp, Sept. 30.—An official statement issued by the Belgian general staff today says:

did not succeed in silencing the guns of the Belgians.

London, Sept. 30.—A dispatch to the Reuters Telegram company from Amsterdam says that the Belgians have received this message from Antwerp:

"From various points the garrison made sorties and repulsed the Germans with heavy losses. Bombardment of Forts Woelchem and St.
Catherine by the Germans continues.
A single attack has been delivered by Germans on Forts Liezele and Fredekoon."

Kiao Chow with bombs thrown from

The wings of the machines were ridin safety to their base.

SAWED-OFF SHOTGUNS TO BE USED BY GUARDS SUGGESTED IN ENGLAND.

London, Sept. 30.—A correspondent writes the London Field suggesting that British sentries "against German spies within the United Kingdom" be armed with the American "sawed off shotgun charged with buckshots. He urges that such a weapon would be more efficient for entries at railway bridges and other places where guards are maintained than the service rifle, especially at night."

No Wonder!

She was a very stout, jolly-looking woman, and she was standing at the corset counter, holding in her hand an article she was returning. Evidently her attention had been suddenly drawn to the legend printed on the label, for she was overheard to murmur: "Made expressly for John Wana-maker." Well, there! No wonder they didn't fit me!

ORDINANCE PROVIDES PLUMBING INSPECTOR

MEASURE INTRODUCED AT COUNCIL MEETING TUESDAY AND GIVEN FIRST READING.

SCOPE OF HIS DUTIES

New Official to be Appointed Will Have Supervision Over All Plumbing Work in the City.

At the council meeting held Tuesday afternoon, the first session of several weeks owing to the illness of Mayor Fathens, the new ordinance providing for a city plumbing inspector was given its first and second readings. In addition to reports and routine business transacted, all members of the commission were present with Mayor Fathens presiding.

Frank R. King, state plumbing inspector, was present at the meeting and explained several sections of the proposed ordinance, which he had drafted, aided by City Attorney W. H. Dougherty. Under the provisions, the board of public works, subject to the confirmation of the council, shall appoint a plumbing inspector in pursuance to the state law requiring such an officer. The inspector is required to be a legal resident, voter and a practical plumber according to the state law provisions.

Must Give Entire Time. During his term of office, the inspector will not be allowed to engage in the business of plumbing, or be interested in any firm engaged in the business. His office will be with the engineering department at the city hall and his duties are imposed upon him by the state law and state plumbing code recently passed. The inspector will also be required to perform such additional tasks and duties as may be imposed by the council at any time.

Under the ordinance there can be no plumbing done in the city of Janesville, except repairing of leaks and stoppages, without a permit being first obtained, issued by the city inspector and the payment of proper fees as provided. The applicant for the plumbing shall file with the inspector plans and specifications showing in detail the work to be done. Before a permit is issued the inspector must approve the application and issue a statement to the applicant of the fees to be charged for the permit. This shall be filed with the city treasurer, making the payment for the fees through the city's office. The rates scheduled for fees are small and expected to constitute the greater part of the compensation for the inspector.

A daily file of the permits granted and a monthly report to the council is required.

Outline of Duties. The duty of the inspector is named by the ordinance as being, to see that the construction, reconstruction and plumbing ventilation hereafter installed in all of the buildings in the city of Janesville shall conform with the rules and regulations as laid down by the state board of health, and to make all inspection provided for by the plumbing code and in the manner stated in the laws.

In said city shall install, permit or suffer to be installed any plumbing of any kind or character, except leakage and repairs and stoppages, unless a permit therefor has been obtained by the said plumbing inspector, and no person shall permit any plumbing or drainage to be used until it has been inspected and approved by the said inspector, unless special permission therefor is given by the council of said city.

Section six of the ordinance was a subject of lengthy discussion by the commission. It was after a conference charged the effect of the section to prevent the inspector and City Health Officer being empowered to condemn faulty plumbing. The purpose of this section was to place under the jurisdiction of the health officer, who would be empowered to order the inspector to remove the plumbing of any building in the city and make a report on his findings, suggesting such changes as are necessary to put the plumbing in a proper sanitary condition. The part charged was made to read as follows:

"The said health officer shall thereupon, with the approval of the board of public works, direct such changes as are necessary to be made and fix a time for doing the same, and any person refusing to comply therewith shall be guilty of a violation."

The action of the council in changing this section making the city health officer's report to change plumbing in any city building because of faulty conditions, authoritative, was a possible chance of the inspector and health officer extending their power to harmful effects. Under the present wording of the section, the request by the health officer to meet the approval of the board of public works before it can be effected.

May Demand Inspection. Section seven states the inspector under the direction and supervision of the council or board of public works, shall have power and authority at all reasonable times for the purpose of inspecting any private or public premises and demand inspection of plumbing work and to require any person doing plumbing to produce their license or permit. An offense of this section is subject to a penalty. All persons, firms or corporations engaging in the plumbing or drainage business in the city of Janesville shall register yearly with the board of public works.

Whenever any work is ready for inspection the plumbing inspector shall be notified by the plumber who received permit to do the work, and all work shall be left uncovered until examined and approved by the inspector.

The penalty for violations of any part of the ordinance is subject to a penalty not exceeding $100 or less than $5 for each offense.

Receive Reports.

On motion, meeting adjourned until Friday.

START CULVERT WORK ON MAGNOLIA AVENUE

Repairs Being Made on Eastern Avenue With Rubble From Railroad Tracks to Center Avenue.

Extensive street work is being done at the present time under the supervision of Councilman Goodman, including repairs on Eastern avenue and the construction of the large cement culvert on the corner of North Oak Hill and Magnolia. An order was passed warranting collection of the assessments.

On the north side of the highway the workmen are excavating a culvert hole nine feet deep and five feet wide across to carry the drainage water from this territory to the cement sewer which connects off Washington street, a distance of nearly a block. It was the original plan to connect the culvert now being built with the sewer this year, but these plans have been abandoned because of limited funds, until next year.

Upon the completion of the big culvert at the avenue intersection, a ditch with a corresponding level to the culvert will be excavated to the sewer to drain the water and prevent its gathering in the low spots of the street.

On Eastern avenue, west of two tracks, rubble from the nearby quarry is being laid over the grade of the street around the curve to Center avenue. The rubble is being used to fill the street mixed with good clay has been laid and will be rolled during the latter part of the week. This combination is expected to form an excellent roadway, the clay giving the rubble good binding qualities, forming practically a macadam roadway. Waste material will be used to bank the side of the street and good results are being shown so far. The rubble is being obtained at the Milwaukee quarry, eliminating much expense.

On North Chatham street several blocks of repairs have been made from waste material from the city crusher. A thick layer of this cracked stone was laid, graded and rolled, forming an ideal pavement, being heavy and bound enough to withstand heavy traffic.

Complaints have been made by residents in the first ward to the overflow of the city fountain at the intersection of Pearl and North Washington streets, the sidewalk and street being constantly muddy from the water. Investigation shows that youngsters from this district have been throwing small pebbles into the water troughs, clogging the outlets. Also it was found that much of the trouble was caused by the kids throwing water from the spouts and with the being stopped court prosecutions will follow.

Serious trouble is being experienced in solving the drainage problem of the first ward, where several low ponds and drains have caused food water to back up into the residents' cellars. At present a tile on Eastern avenue near the railroad track is being dug up and replaced, affording a better outlet to the river.

POLITICS HOLD STAGE IN MICHIGAN TODAY.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 30.—Politics held the center of the stage in Michigan today when the fall conventions of the three big political parties—Democratic, Republican and Progressive—were held. The Democratic held their sessions here, the G. O. P. forces met in Kalamazoo, while the Bull Moose held forth at Bay City.

Each party was to make its nominations and draft platforms. The state auditor general, attorney general, state treasurer and state land commissioner, in addition to selecting new state central committee men and drafting platforms.

Interest centered in the Democratic conventions, where the long standing feud the "Wilson-Democrats" and the Wood-Shields faction threatened trouble. State chairman Shields said early today that the "organization" wing would be in complete control, although the "Progressives" promised to make a last-ditch fight for the seat of their contesting delegation from Wayne (Detroit) Calhoun and Delta counties. Success in this fight would give them control of the convention and subsequent control of the party organization in Michigan.

There was every indication that the Republican gathering in Kalamazoo would be serene and peaceful. The one chance of a serious clash apparently rested on the possibility that Chase S. Osborn, the nominee for governor, and the party leaders might not agree on platform planks. Osborn several months ago went on record as favoring the recall of judicial decisions, but, when the issue threatened to stir up internal strife in the party, he announced that he would make an effort to dictate his radical views into the party platform.

FACULTY SAY ROWING IS STRAIN ON HEART

Teachers at Wisconsin University Decide Not to Allow Crews to Go To Poughkeepsie Next Year.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—The University of Wisconsin will not participate in the Poughkeepsie boat races next year according to the action taken by the faculty at its first meeting yesterday. This action was taken upon recommendation of the athletic council and the medical faculty and is due to the results of an investigation made by the department of clinical medicine. Statistics prepared by the department show that a large number of the crew candidates develop hypertrophied heart, twenty-eight out of fifty-six freshmen and twenty out of twenty-three "W" men showing this condition. General participation in rowing will be encouraged, but inter-collegiate racing will not be resumed until sufficient evidence has been developed to eliminate the present intense strain of preparation for contests.

BRAVES NOW CHAMPS; NOW UP TO MACKIES

Hub Team Trim Cubs Yesterday While Giants Lose—Stallings' Bunch Make Record Showing.

The Boston Braves are the undisputed champions of the National League for 1914. This title was tendered them yesterday, when they trimmed the Chicago Cubs in the last of a four game series, while the Braves lost to the Pirates at the Polo Grounds.
The Braves, to be sure, have made a wonderful showing and in fact, hold the honor of having made the greatest uphill fight and victory in the history of the national game in America. On May 18th they had won but four of twenty games, and were in eighth or last place, with a percentage of .200. On July fifth they began a spurt that seemed to upset every other club in the circuit. On July fifth they held the bottom berth for the last time of the year. Since July fifth the Braves have won 62 games and lost but 16, a record never before equalled. During this time the hub team have depended on three hurlers, Randolph, Tyler and James, who by the way must do the bulk of work in the coming series with the Mackies.
Now up to Mack's Athletics from Philadelphia, who a few days ago clinched the American League pennant, after an easy fight, Odds are now favoring the Athletics, although the betting is sure to change many times before the series opens for the championship of the world.

Sport Snap Shots

Ban Johnson has denied all his pitchers the use of what they call the "emery ball." They had discovered, some of them, that by rubbing the surface of the ball with a bit of emery paper or sandpaper the roughness produced on the ball's surface made it much easier to grip and made all their curves more effective. A new baseball is quite smooth and often even slippery. Roughening it with a bit of emery paper quite a help and many pitchers had come to rely on a roughened surface. Johnson's interdiction will displease some of them, but Ban felt that it must be done. Resorting to artificial means in producing sharp curves and so on is not to be encouraged, thinks Ban. Any player found guilty of using the emery ball will be suspended and fined considerably. Even at that it's hard to see why the emery ball is much worse than the spitball, another case where the surface of the ball is tampered with. They might evade Ban's ruling by sewing a bit of sandpaper to an inconspicuous part of their trousers and rubbing the ball there before pitching. By doing this in an offhand and unstudied manner they might get away with it.

The Brooklyn Dodgers are not afraid of the Boston Braves at any rate. And should the Braves beat them, the Dodgers would claim the pennant. They would on paper, at least. In the eighteen games they have played the Braves this season they have beat them twelve times. And as there are only three more games in the schedule between the two teams the Dodgers have the season's series clinched.

The Central Association has announced that in their eastern dry towns are the best baseball towns. It was imprudent of them to make this statement. They will have trouble filling out their line-up next season.

From a hasty perusal of recent statements made by big league managers, it seems that some sixteen different clubs in the American and National leagues would have won pennants had it not been for the raids of the Feds.

For once Joe Mandot won't be able to beef to his manager about framing for a bum match. This time it's all his own fault. He's trying to get a divorce.

Cleveland fans are pleased to learn that Somers, owner of the Naps, plans to strengthen the team next season. There has been a feeling among the fans for quite a while that something of the sort should be done.

Collins, Murphy, Baker and McInnis are among the first seven runners of the American League.

EDLER RETURNS TO BELOIT AFTER DECIDING TO ENTER WISCONSIN; BREAKS NOSE

After deciding to enter Wisconsin University as a sophomore this fall, Ray Charles Edler, has returned to Beloit. Coach Evans, realizing his lack of varsity material for a successful eleven this fall, kept after Edler, until the sturdy halfback changed his mind on going to Wisconsin. Edler, it is said, wished to take certain work at Beloit, the faculty turning him down. This is what caused him to consider another school.

Edler reported for practice late last week, and took up work in the backfield where Evans will use him at halfback this year. In a hard scrimmage Saturday, he broke his nose, and will be out of active practice for a week or more. Evans will, however, keep him in a suit, to do some punting, as the school is woefully weak in the kicking line this fall.

GRIDIRON GOSSIP AT THE WESTERN CAMPS

Chicago vs. Indiana Saturday—Badgers Tackle Lawrence—Many Other Teams to Get Into Action.

Saturday marks the first big day in the gridiron game of the 1914 season. At that time, practically every college or university of importance will send their team into the field to meet a stronger or weaker opponent.

Stagg's Maroons of the University of Chicago will tackle the Indiana eleven led by Coach Childs, a former Yale star at Marshall field, in perhaps the most important game in the west. As Stagg fears the Hoosiers, because of Yale's style of play the latter will undoubtedly use, the game will be of intense interest. The loser will be eliminated from the conference race.

The Wisconsin eleven will tackle Lawrence at Madison Saturday. Lawrence is made up this year of nine veterans and twenty worthy subs who can be depended upon in pinches. The Badgers must play at their best, and if they do, it is doubtful if they can roll up a score to any extent.

Minnesota will play North Dakota. Northwestern is billed to meet Lake Forest. Michigan meets De Pauw, while M. A. C. is to tackle Olivet.

HEAR ARGUMENTS ON
HENRY ALBERTS CASE

Legal arguments were heard by Judge Maxfield this morning in the municipal court in the case of Henry Alberts, who was found guilty by a jury to "indecent exposure." Attorney E. H. Ryan, who defended Alberts, showed the defendant was not guilty on basis of a "warrant" and that it was not proven that Alberts had the intention of committing a crime. The case was held over until this afternoon, when further arguments were heard.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ENJOYING THOUGH NOT POSSESSING.

"I do not own an inch of land. But all I see is mine. The orchards and the mowing field. The lawns and gardens fine. The winds my tax collectors are. They bring me tithes divine. Wild scents and subtle essences. A tribute rare and fragrant. And more magnificent than all. My window keeps for me. A glimpse of blue immensity. A little chip of sea."

—Lucy Larcom.

As the young woman paused in front of a window where some wonderful bits of statuary were displayed. The younger woman gave a quick glance in and then tugged at the other's arm. "Come away," she said with bitterness, "tossing her voice and drawing down the corners of her mouth. "Come away, it makes me miserable to look at those things, I want some of them so."

"But, my dear," said the older woman, "can't you enjoy looking at them even if you can't have them? Just see that exquisite bowl. The shape of it actually makes me happy it is so perfect." And a smile of the purest kind of pleasure lit up her sweet, plain face and thrilled in her voice. Just think how much happiness that woman must get out of her ability to enjoy without possessing. And how much unhappiness the other must find in her inability to see without desiring. Of course one was old and the other young, and the younger woman may some time learn to feel the pure pleasure of uncoveted admiration, but she certainly is not headed in that direction now. The passionate desire for possession of the things one's eyes enjoy is inborn in each of us. The little child who thinks the moon is beautiful straightaway reaches out his hands to grasp it and cries when he finds he cannot have it. During the first few years of our life, we cannot imagine any happiness except that of grasping a little more slowly and the brain to quicken that we begin to realize that there are other happinesses besides those of possession. Some go through life without ever realizing this. As Ellen Key puts it, "As yet few people have attained a culture like that of the Attican beggar who thanked Alcibiades for giving him the jewel that Alcibiades indeed wore but that the beggar was free to rejoice at." And she poignantly adds, "To attain to regard to human beings this source of joy free from all covetousness is the flower of fine breeding."

We all know how often desire is mostly torture and possession but dust and ashes after all. In the pure, high pleasure of uncoveted admiration there is no such drawback. To be sure such pleasure is not so exquisitely sweet as the other draught, but it is not much that it has no bitter dregs.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

In creaming butter and sugar for cake or hard sauce, use a wooden potato masher. Warm the mixing bowl before putting in the ingredients and they will soon become a light, creamy mass with half the usual labor. To make apples tender and give them a better flavor, add a pinch of salt when cooking them. To clean wire screens, dampen cloth with kerosene and rub both sides. This also preserves the wire and keeps the flies away, as they do not like the odor. To prevent a dark ring appearing around the yolk of hard-boiled eggs, plunge them into cold water as soon as they are boiled enough.

THE TABLE.

Spanish Pickle No. 1—Four heads cauliflower, one peck green tomatoes, one dozen large cucumbers, one-half dozen red sweet peppers and one-half dozen of green; one quart of little white onions cut in small pieces. Let stand in brine overnight. Wash in cold water and add six bunches celery cut in small pieces. Dressing: One and one-half gallons, good cider vinegar, five pounds brown sugar, five cents worth turmeric, five cents worth white mustard seed, one-half pound ground mustard, one-half cup flour, one tablespoon cinnamon. Let vinegar, sugar and spices come to a boil. Add vegetables cut in small pieces. Stir, then add mustard and flour mixed to a paste; cook five minutes.

Spanish Pickle No. 2—One peck green tomatoes, one large head cabbage, eight onions, chopped fine separately and salted. Let stand overnight. Squeeze as dry as possible and put in large bowl. Mix one and one-half pounds light brown sugar, ten cents worth white mustard seed, one-half pound ground mustard, one teaspoon black pepper, one pint grated horseradish, six red peppers. Mix well, put in jars and cover with good cider vinegar.

Mixed Pickles—Three hundred small cucumbers, four green peppers sliced fine, two large or three small heads cauliflower, three heads white cabbage shaved fine, nine onions, one large root horseradish, one quart green beans cut one inch long, one quart green tomatoes sliced; put this mixture in a pretty strong brine overnight. Sprinkle in three hours, then sprinkle in a fourth pound black and one-fourth pound white mustard seed; also one tablespoon black ground pepper. Let come to a good boil in just vinegar enough to cover, adding a little alum. Drain again, and when cold, mix in half pint ground mustard; cover whole with good cider vinegar; add turmeric enough to color if you like.

Mustard Pickle—Two cauliflowers, two quarts green tomatoes, two quarts small cucumbers, one quart small onions, six green peppers, one and one-half cups sugar. Let stand in salt and water overnight. Drain and cook in water and vinegar until tender. When tender add six tablespoons mustard, one tablespoon turmeric, one cup flour. Cook twenty minutes and put in jars.

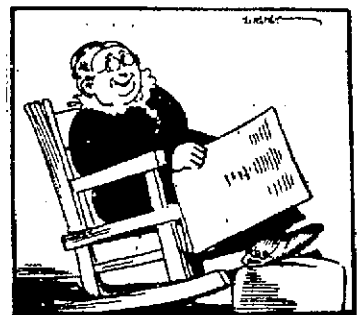

Pork Chop Pie—Take about ten medium-sized potatoes, boil and mash thoroughly (fix as for mashed potatoes), and six pork chops. Put layer of mashed potato at bottom of greased baking dish, then three chops (seasoned to taste); now an other layer of potato, then the other three chops and rest of potato. Put in enough milk to cover, and bake about three-fourths hour. This will serve six persons.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl fifteen years old, in the second year of high school. Am I too far advanced?

(2) I have a girl friend who is forever making fun of me. For every dress or anything they wear she has some remark. It always makes me feel bad. What should I say to her?

(3) Is it all right for me to have boy friends? When they pass me on the street they tip their hats and smile. Are they just making fun, or is that a friendly way to the ones I know. To the others I pay no attention; but I do like to have lots of friends.

(4) How long should I wear my dresses? I wear them to my ankles. Is that too long?

(5) What will make the face smooth, when it is rough and scaly? Also, what will whiten the hands and arms?

(6) Would you recommend the rice complexion powder?

ROSE BUD. (1) About the average age. (2) I should say in a good-natured way. Let us avoid personal remarks; I have found that if girls are kind and sweet tempered and are not making fun of others, nor wounding their feelings, that they are happier and make more friends.

(3) I am sure tipping the hat and smiling is a gentlemanly way to greet a friend. It is a girl's privilege to meet you have no right to speak first. Often when they are in the same classes young people become acquainted without an introduction.

(4) About the right length. (5) Your face is rough because the oil glands are not working properly. A good cold cream, well rubbed into the skin after bathing the face in warm water, should help it. Do this at night.

(6) Rice flour is good; face talcum is not injurious. Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it proper for the gentleman to take hold of his lady friend's arm or vice versa?

(2) How late should a young man stay when calling on Sunday evening?

(3) Would it be considered proper for me to invite two gentlemen and one lady friend of mine to a dinner party at my home if I was not keeping company with either of them?

(4) Does a boy consider a girl cheap if she allows him to kiss her good-night?

(5) The Kaiser forbade the army officers to walk the streets holding a lady's arm and the officers set the style abroad. Here it is quite common for the gentleman to take the lady's arm. It is proper for the lady to take her escort's arm if she prefers to do so.

(6) Half past ten is the usual hour for leaving taking. (3) Certainly. (4) If the young man has seen anything of life he certainly thinks less of a girl who will permit such liberties. If he is ignorant of good usage he should be taught.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me how to make rhubarb wine and oil of rose geranium. What is good for the hair? Mine is falling out awful and getting gray.

MRS. L. B. Rhubarb Wine—Eight pounds of rhubarb, grated rind of four lemons, eight quarts of water, six pounds sugar. Chop rhubarb, add lemon rind and water; let stand three days. Strain, add sugar, pour into crock, cover with muslin, let stand for two weeks. Cover tightly. At end of month it will be ready to bottle. Vaseline is very good for hair. Rub it into the roots. This is good also: Two ounces bayrum, tablespoonful of glycerine, tablespoonful of camphor. This cleans scalp and prevents falling hair. Nothing prevents hair turning gray.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

A school child of tender years was pleading to be allowed to remain at home from school.

"Are you not feeling well?" asked the mother.

"Yes."

"Then why not go to school, dear? Every day is a link in your chain and if you stay at home today you may slip behind. If you are well I advise you to go."

The child began to cry. "I am behind. Way behind in my arithmetic, and I cannot do my problems. I never want to go to school again." This outburst started a somewhat tardy investigation by the mother. She found that her child was pitifully inadequate to do the work that was being handed out to the children at being nothing about the fundamental principles of arithmetic.

At first the mother was very angry—what had she been sending her child to school for? Then, common sense came in and camped and accusingly pointed its finger at her, and on the finger seemed stamped the word, carelessness. She admitted to herself that her child never did anything but make a mess of it. She had, heretofore, been rather glad of it, as it gave her just that much more time. Now, she thought rather sarcastically, that she had paid well for the extra time.

She began to take an interest in the daily lessons of her children; in their daily happenings and the friends they knew and associated with. It was a new world to her—this world occupied by her children and they taught her fully as much as she taught them. Each evening she devoted one-half hour to the work in hand, with most gratifying results.

The backward child rose rapidly in his class; his arithmetic papers were daily coming higher in the marks; and he was always eagerly willing to go to school.

Some times we leave too much for the teacher to do; we expect too much of them.

One day he came into his parents' home crying bitterly.

"What's the trouble son?" asked his mother, though in her heart she knew, as his appearance was, to put it mildly, a bit disheveled.

"Jim Blank," said her young hopeful as he brushed the dust of the encounter from his clothes. The mother did not tell the boy that he should not say "licked," neither did she tell him not to mind. Jim Blank had been making it miserable for her boy for over a year and as he was older by a couple of years he bid fair to keep the younger boy in a state of undesirable subjection. She crossed the room to the cupboard and took out her purse and extracting fifty cents from it, put it on the table with this remark: "Jim is larger and older than you, but that fifty cents is yours if you go out and give him some of the treatment that he has been giving only to you. If you do a good job of it I will raise the amount to a dollar. I do not want to teach you to quarrel, but you seem to have arrived at the stage where you have got to fight or be continually bullied. My advice to you is a case like this is to go out and give him a surprise. When you think you're almost whipped—just stick a little longer. That plan wins in every thing. You just stick."

APPLY SULPHUR LIKE A COLD CREAM WHEN SKIN BREAKS OUT SAYS SULPHUR WILL END ITCHING ECZEMA

In the treatment of the various forms of disfiguring, itching and burning Eczema such as Acne, Ringworm, Salt Rheum, there is nothing known that can take the place of bold-sulphur cream.

It effects such prompt relief, even in the aggravated Eczema, that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians.

For years bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous eruptions by reason of its cooling, parasite-destroying properties. Bold-sulphur is not only parasiticide, but antipruritic and antiseptic, therefore invaluable in overcoming irritable and inflammatory affections of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure, yet in every instance it instantly stops the agonizing itching; subdues the irritation and heals the inflamed, raw skin right up and it is often years later before any Eczema eruption again appears.

Those troubled should obtain from any good pharmacist an ounce of bold-sulphur cream and apply it directly upon the abrasion like an ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome. This is published for Walter and antipruritic and antiseptic, there-

The Last Shot

By
FREDERICK PALMER

(Copyright, 1914, by Charles Scribner's Sons)

"I will give you something to look about other than a little setback like this! Get up there with your rifles!"

He formed the nucleus of a firing-line under cover of the shoulder, and then set the remainder of his company to work with their spades making a trench. The second battalion of the 128th, which faced the knoll, was also digging at the base of the slope, and another regiment in reserve was deploying on the plain. After the fall of the knoll the Gray commander had settled down to the business of a systematic approach.

And what of those of Fracasse's men who had not run but had dropped in their tracks when the charge halted? They were between two lines of fire. There was no escape. Some of the wounded had a merciful quick end, others suffered the consciousness of being hit again and again; the dead were bored through with bullet holes. In torture, the survivors prayed for death; for all had to die except Peterkin, the pasty-faced little valet's son.

Peterkin was quite safe, hugging the bottom of the shell crater under a swarm of hornets. In a surprisingly short time he became accustomed to the situation and found himself ravenously hungry, for the strain of the last 12 hours had burned up tissue. He took a biscuit out of his knapsack and began nibbling it, as became a true rodent.

CHAPTER X.

Marta's First Glimpse of War.

As Marta and the children came to the door of the chapel after the recitation of the mass, she saw the civil population moving along the street in the direction of the range. There was nothing for Marta to do but start homeward. The thought that her mother was alone made her hasten at a pace much more rapid than the procession of people, whose talk and exclamations formed a monotone audible in its nearness, despite the continuous rifle-fire, now broken by the pound of the guns.

"All done to beat the Grays, isn't it, Miss Gailand? They are trying to take our land," said Jacky Werther as Marta parted from him.

"Yes, it is done to beat the Grays," she answered. "Good luck, Jacky!"

Yes, yes, to beat the Grays! The same idea—the fighting nature, the brute nature of man—animated both sides. Had the Browns really tried for peace? Had they, in the spirit of her oath, appealed to justice and reason? Why hadn't their premier before all the world said to the premier of the Grays, as one honest, friendly neighbor to another over a matter of dispute:

"We do not want war. We know you outnumber us, but we know you would not take advantage of that. If we are wrong we will make amends; if you are wrong we know that you will. Let us not play tricks in secret. Let us gain points, we civilized nations, but be frank with each other. Let us not try to irritate each other or to influence our people, but to realize how much we have in common and that our only purpose is common progress and happiness."

At the turn of the road in front of the castle she saw the gunners of the batteries making an emplacement for their guns in a field of carrots that had not yet been harvested. The roots of golden yellow were mixed with the tossing spade-furrows of earth.

A shadow like a great cloud in mad flight shot over the earth, and with the gunners she looked up to see a Gray dirigible. Already it was turning homeward; already it had gained its object as a scout. On the fragile platform of the gondola was a man, seemingly a human mite aiming a tiny toy gun. His target was one of the Brown aeroplanes.

"They're in danger of cutting their own envelope! They can't get the angle! The plane is too high!"

claimed the artillery commander. Both he and his men forgot their work in watching the spectacle of aerial David against aerial Goliath. "If our man lands with his little bomb, oh, my!" he grinned. "That's why he is so high. He's been waiting up there."

"Pray God he will!" exclaimed one of the gunners. "Look at him volplane—motor at full speed, too!"

"Into it! Making sure! Oh, splen—O!" cried the artillery commander.

A ball of lightning shot forth sheets of flame. Dirigible and plane were hidden in an ugly swirl of yellowish smoke, rolling out into a purple cloud that spread into prismatic mist over the descent of cavoring human bodies and broken machinery and twisted braces, flying pieces of tattered or burning cloth. David has taken Goliath down with him in a death grip.

An aeroplane following the dirigible as a screen, hoping to get home with information if the dirigible were lost, had escaped the sharpshooters in the church tower by flying around the town. However, it ran within range of the automatic and the sharpshooters on top of the castle tower. They failed of the bull's-eye, but their bullets, rimming the target, crippling the motor, and cutting braces, brought the crumpling wings about the helpless pilot. The watching gunners uttered "Aha!" of horror and triumph as they saw him fall, gliding this way and that, in the agony of slow descent.

"Come, now!" called the artillery commander. "We are wasting precious time."

Entering the grounds of the Gailand house, Marta had to pass to one side of the path, now blocked by army wagons and engineers' materials and tools. Soldiers carrying sand-bags were taking the shortest cut, trampling the flowers on their way.

"Do you know whose property this is?" she demanded in a burst of anger.

"Ours—the nation's!" answered one, perspiring freely at his work. "Sorry!" he added on second thought.

Already parts of the first terrace were shoulder-high with sand-bags and one automatic had been set in place. Marta observed as she turned to the veranda. There her mother sat in her favorite chair, hands relaxed as they rested on its arms, while she looked out over the valley in the supertranquility that comes to some women under a strain—as soldiers who have been on steeves can tell you—that some psychologists interpret one way and some another, none knowing even their own wiles.

"Marta, did any of the children come?" Mrs. Gailand asked in her usual pleasant tone. So far as she was concerned, the activity on the terrace did not exist. She seemed oblivious of the fact of war.

Marta's monosyllable absently answering the question was expressive of her wonder at her mother. Most girls do not know their mothers much better than psychologists know their wives.

"Marta, whatever happens one should go regularly about what he considers his duty," said Mrs. Gailand. "They have been as considerate as they could, evidently by Colonel Lanstron's orders," she proceeded, nodding toward the industrious engineers. "And they've packed all the paintings expression, he twirled his thumbs one about the other in never-ending circles.

At length the girl inquired: "Do you always do that when you go a-calling?"

"No," drawled the youth; "sometimes I (twirling his thumbs in the reverse direction) do it this way."

Mr. Harris had been considering for some time the advisability of approaching his son's school teacher in regard to that young man's studies. He was sure William was not getting along as fast as he should, and this fact worried the father greatly.

He was greeted kindly by the teacher, and after a few preliminary questions the father inquired: "What branch do you consider the most profitable for my son William, Mr. Hunt?"

"I can hardly say, but I think a good, stout blue beech or a long, sinuous birch would do him as much good as any."

The captain of engineers in command, seeing Marta, hurried toward her.

"Miss Gailand, isn't it?" he asked. "I have been waiting for you. I—well, I found that I could not make the situation clear to your mother."

"He thinks me in my second childhood or out of my head," Mrs. Gailand explained with a shade of tartness. "And he has been so polite in trying to conceal his opinion, too," she added with a comprehending smile.

The captain flushed in embarrassment.

"I—I can't speak too strongly," he declared when he had regained his composure. "Though everything seems to be safe here now, it may not be in an hour. You must go, all of you. This house will be an inferno as soon as the 53d falls back, and I can't possibly get your mother to appreciate the fact, Miss Gailand."

"But I said that I did appreciate it and that the Gailands have been in infernos before—perhaps not as bad as this one that is coming—but, then, the Gailands must keep abreast of the times," replied Mrs. Gailand. "I have asked Minna and she prefers to remain. I am glad of that. I am glad now that we kept her, Marta. She is as loyal as my old maid and the butler and the cook were to your grandmother in the last war. Ah, the Gailands had many servants then!"

"This isn't like the old war. This place will be shelled, enfiladed! And you two—" the captain protested desperately.

"I became a Gailand when I married," said Mrs. Gailand, "and the Gailand women have always remained with their property in time of war. Naturally, I shall remain!"

"Miss Gailand, it was you—your influence I was counting on—" The captain turned to Marta in a final appeal.

Mrs. Gailand was watching her daughter's face intently.

"We stay!" replied Marta, and the captain saw in the depths of her eyes, a cold blue-black, that further argument was useless.

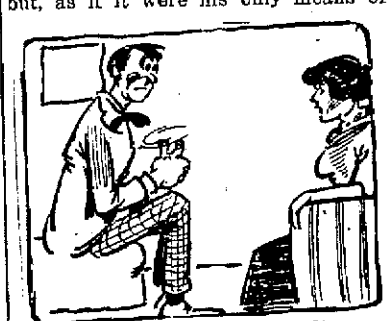

Now came the sweep of a rising roar from the sky with the command to attention of the rush of a fast express-train past a country railway station. Two Gray dirigibles with their escort of aeroplanes were bearing toward the pass over the pass road. The automatic and the rifleman in the tower banged away to no purpose, but the central sections of the envelope of the rear dirigible had been torn in shreds; it was buckling. Clouds of blue shrapnel smoke broke around its gondola. A number of field-guns joined forces with a battery of high-angle guns in a havoc that left a drifting derelict; the remainder of the squadron had completed its loop and was pointing toward the plain.

From a great altitude, literally out of the blue of heaven, high over the Gray lines, Marta made out a Brown squadron of dirigibles and planes descending across the track of the Grays.

Dinner Stories

A big, raw-boned youth in the Carolina mountains went to see a young woman of his acquaintance. In his bashfulness he sat in silence; but, as if it were his only means of expression, he twirled his thumbs one about the other in never-ending circles.

At length the girl inquired: "Do you always do that when you go a-calling?"

"No," drawled the youth; "sometimes I (twirling his thumbs in the reverse direction) do it this way."

Mr. Harris had been considering for some time the advisability of approaching his son's school teacher in regard to that young man's studies. He was sure William was not getting along as fast as he should, and this fact worried the father greatly.

THE WORLD SET FREE

Europe's Armageddon and the Last War

By H. G. WELLS

Copyright, 1914, by H. G. WELLS

Already this system has abolished a distinctively "rustic" population throughout vast areas of the old world where it has prevailed immemorially. That shy, unstimulated life of the lonely hovel, the narrow scum and petty spite and persecutions of the small village, that hoarding, half inanimate existence away from books, thought or social participation, and in constant contact with cattle, pigs and poultry, is very rapidly passing away out of human experience. In a little while it will be gone altogether. In the nineteenth century it had already ceased to be a necessary human state, and only the absence of any collective intelligence and an imagined need for tough and unintelligent soldiers and for a prolific class at a low level, prevented its systematic replacement at that time.

And while this settlement of the country was in progress the urban camps of the first phase of the council's activities were rapidly developing, partly through the inherent forces of the situation and partly through the council's direction, into a modern type of town.

It is characteristic of the manner in which large enterprises forced themselves upon the Brissago council, that it was not until the end of the first year of their administration, and then only with extreme reluctance, that they would take up the manifest need for a lingua franca for the world. They seem to have given little attention to the various theoretical universal languages which were proposed to them. They wished to give as little trouble to hasty and simple people as possible, and the worldwide distribution of English gave them a bias for it from the beginning. The extreme simplicity of its grammar was also in its favor.

It was not without some sacrifices that the English speaking peoples were permitted the satisfaction of hearing their speech used universally. The language was shorn of a number of grammatical peculiarities—the distinctive forms for the subjunctive mood, for example—and most of its irregular plurals were abolished. Its spelling was systematized and adapted to the vowel sounds in use upon the continent of Europe, and a process of incorporating foreign nouns and verbs commenced that speedily reached enormous proportions. Within ten years from the establishment of the world republic the new English dictionary had swelled to include a vocabulary of 250,000 words, and a man of 1900 would have found considerable difficulty in reading an ordinary newspaper. On the other hand, the men of the new time could still appreciate the older English literature. Certain minor acts of uniformity accompanied this larger one. The idea of a common understanding and a general simplification of intercourse once it was accepted led very naturally to the universal establishment of the metric system of weights and measures and to the disappearance of the various makeshift calendars that had hitherto confused chronology. The year was divided into thirteen months of four weeks each, and New Year's day and Leap Year's day were made holidays and did not count at all in the ordinary week. So the weeks and the months were brought into correspondence. And, moreover, as the king put it to Firmin, it was decided to "nail down Easter." In these matters, as in so many others, the new civilization came as a simplification of ancient complications. The history of the calendar throughout the world is a history of inadequate adjustment, of attempts to fix seedtime and midwinter, that go back into the very beginning of human society, and this final rectification had a symbolic value quite beyond its practical convenience. But the council would have no rash nor harsh innovations, no strange names for the months and no alteration in the numbering of the years.

The world had already been put upon one universal monetary basis. For some months after the accession of the council the world's affairs had been carried on without any sound currency at all. Over great regions money was still in use, but with the most extravagant variations in price and the most disconcerting fluctuations of public confidence. The ancient rarity of gold upon which the entire system rested was gone. Gold was now a waste product in the release of atomic energy, and it was plain that no metal could be the basis of the monetary system again. Henceforth all coins must be token coins. Yet the whole world was accustomed to metallic money, and a vast proportion of existing human relationships had grown up upon a cash basis and were almost inconceivable without that convenient liquidating factor. It seemed absolutely necessary to the life of the social organization to have some sort of currency, and the council had therefore to discover some real value upon which to rest it. Various such apparently stable values as land and hours of work were considered. Ultimately the government, which was now in possession of most of the supplies of energy releasing material, fixed a certain number of units of energy as the value of a gold sovereign, declared a sovereign to be worth exactly 20 marks, 25 francs, $5, and so forth, with the other current units of the world and undertook under various qualifications and conditions to deliver energy upon demand as payment for every sovereign presented. On the whole this worked satisfactorily. They saved the face of the pound sterling. Coin was rehabilitated, and after a phase of price fluctuations began to settle down to definite equivalents and uses again, with names and everyday values familiar to the common run of people.

As the Brissago council came to realize that what it had supposed to be temporary camps of refugees were rapidly developing into great towns of a new type and that it was remodeling the world in spite of itself, it decided to place this work of redistributing the nonagricultural population in the hands of a compacter and better qualified special committee. That committee is now, far more than the council or any other of its delegated committees, the active government of the world. Developed from an almost invisible germ of "town planning" that came obscurely into existence in Europe or America (the question is still in dispute) somewhere in the closing decades of the nineteenth century, its work, the continual active planning and replanning of the world as a place of human habitation, is now, so to speak, the collective, material activity of the race. The spontaneous, disorderly spreadings and recessions of populations, as aimless and mechanical as the trickling of spilled water, which was the substance of history for endless years, giving rise here to congestions, there to chronic devastating wars and everywhere to a discomfort and disorderliness that was at its best only picturesque is at an end. Men spread now, with the whole power of the race to aid them, into every available region of the earth. Their cities are no longer tethered to running water and the proximity of cultivation, their plans are no longer affected by strategic considerations or thoughts of social insecurity. The aeroplane and the nearly costless mobile car have abolished trade routes, a common language and a universal law have abolished a thousand restraining inconveniences, and so an astonishing dispersal of habitations has begun. One may live anywhere. And so it is that our cities now are true social gatherings, each with a character of its own and distinctive interests of its own, and most of them with a common occupation. They lie out in the former deserts, those long wasted sunbaths of the race, they tower amidst eternal snows, they hide in remote islands and bask on broad lagoons. For a time the whole tendency of mankind was to desert the river valleys in which the race had been cradled for half a million years, but now that the war against flies has been waged so successfully that this pestiferous branch of life is nearly extinct they are returning thither with a renewed appetite for gardens laced by watercourses and for pleasant living amidst islands and houseboats and bridges and nocturnal lanterns reflected on the sea.

ALLEN WEST WRITES ON TOMATO WORMS

Two Peculiar Species Are Sent in for Identification—Cautious Alfalfa Growers.

Two moths have been sent in this week for identification. They were found hanging to telephone poles. They are large grey moths similar, no doubt, to the one described by Mr. Landgren in a letter to this paper. The tomato worm sphinx, or phlegonthis celeus. The ground color of the body and wings is gray and there are various dots and stripes of different shades. On each side of the abdomen are orange-colored spots. The female moths lay the eggs in the evening on tomato or tobacco plants where they soon hatch into green worms. These caterpillars grow rapidly and in a few weeks become three inches long and nearly as thick as a man's finger. They are light green with several oblique whitish stripes along each side of the body. These worms are familiar to the tobacco grower. Sometimes brown specimens are found. Early in September, in the northern states, these caterpillars complete their larval growth and burrow into the ground some distance, where they form oval cells in the soil, shed their larval skins, and change to pupae. The pupae or chrysalis is a long, slender, brown, conical case bent over like the handle of a jug. They remain in this state until the following summer when they come forth as moths.

Inquiry is frequently made with reference to the fall cutting of alfalfa. The best authorities say that alfalfa should not be cut later than September 30.

Of course conditions vary somewhat with the season. When the month is warm and wet cutting may be delayed until the 15th. It is better, however, to run the risk of killing the alfalfa.

CLAIMS TIRE PROOF AGAINST BLOWOUTS.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 30.—An automobile tire proof against blowouts and punctures, and which will outlive the ordinary tire tenfold is the claim made today for the invention of Alonzo Suber, a Cleveland man.

Suber's tire is woven from rubber coated cords. Each cord contains thirteen threads of a tough fabric and are woven and coated by special machinery. Both the machinery for making the cords and the process of weaving the cords into tires are patented in this country and abroad.

Ordinary tires stand only about 150 pounds pressure to the square inch. Suber's tires it is claimed will stand a pressure of 1000 pounds. This would give them a metallic hardness with a greater resilience than any tire now in use.

Suber's invention is patented in America and Europe. Large tire manufacturers in Akron hold the American patent rights. It is claimed that Suber's invention will also be of much value in the manufacture of high pressure fire hose and air hose locomotives.

Suber is a man of 55 who has made and lost two fortunes. He came to Cleveland after the panic of 1903 unknown and penniless. Since then he has been working on the invention which he hopes will place his name beside the inventor of the automobile itself.
